VOL. 14, NUMBER 92 MONESSEN, PA, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29 1915 SIX CENTS THE WEEK

Once we thought work was a curse; then it came to us that it was a necsary evil; and yesterday the truth dawned upon us that it is a blessed privilege.—Hubbard.

Abolish fear and every man and woman is an orator or artist. The criminal and the untruthful person are obsessed by fear until the genial current of their life is turned awry.

Fell in Creek

Enroute from South Brownsville to Charleroi, W. E. Sellers of the Wilbur hotel in Charleroi, went over a bridge at Gilespie in his automobile and was thrown a distance of 14 feet and severely bruised. The miraculous escape of Sellers is due to his falling nito the water of the creek.

The bridge was undergoing repairs and had no railing on one side. The red lantern lights had gone out and when Sellers applied the brakes the car skidded. Both front wheels went over the side of the bridge before he could get out. The rest of the car slid over, throwing him into the bed of the creek. He was taken to a doctor's office where he was given medical attention. His car was badly damaged, but it is thought it can be repaired.

Sellers had been spending the evening socially in South Brownsville and had departed at 10:45 for the Wilbur hotel.

Takes Two Marks

When an elector enters the polls on November 2 to vote, he will be handed but one ballot. It was announced at the commissioner's office yesterday that the names of all candidates will appear on the same ballot. This is the same plan as was carried out at the election in 1914.

To vote for a candidate for judge of the common pleas court and any party ticket, however, it will be necessary to mark the ballot in two different places. In other words to vote a full ticket it wil require two distinct and separate cross marks.

—After a long illness and a struggle for life, the famous actor, J. Warren Kerrigan will appear again today at the Olympic in "A Shriek in the Night" with Helen Lessie and Norbert Nyles, directed by Jasques Jaccard. 1t

Hunters' License Ready

County Treasurer James M. Cramer has issued 850 hunters' licenses this season. At this time last year, the number issued was over 1,700. On account of the season opening one month later, the number of tags issued is about one half of the number one year ago.

Arthur Thomas, of the prothonotary's office. was the first hunter to apply for a license and L. W. Mowry of Derry, was the last one to get his hunting permit. Thus far one woman was granted a permit and the oldest hunter was just 84 years to the good.

This year the license tag is printed on red oiled cotton goods, 3½ by 4½ inches, perforated with four holes at the corners suitable for fastening on the coat sleeve. The tag is a very conspicuous one. Last year the color was dull yellow.

Hunters should apply early for their permits for the reason that when the season opens there is always a big crowd at the treasurer's office and great delay is occasioned.

Sale a Success

Success has attended the enrollment of a limited membership in the Hoosier club. At the G. F. Wright furniture store it is repored that but a few of the cabinets remain and as soon as these have been apportioned to an equal number of applicants, the club will be closed.

This modern kitchen comfort which has become a household by-word in the past few years, is now being offered at $9 less than the standard price.

Five different models are included in the preesent offer of the Hoosier company, which now has on the market an improved cabinet that was originally not to have been placed before the public until a later date. The heavy inroads on the stock of the company forced the concern to put their latest product on the market before they anticipated, however.

Hold Convention

Members of the Independent order of Odd Fellows from all over the state of Pennsylvania are arranging to attend the annual state convention of that order which is scheduled to meet in Greensburg during the week of October 18-23. The coming of the Odd Fellows of the state will be the biggest convention held in Greensburg in years. The delegates alone will number anywhere from 1,500 to 2,000 and from many lodges there will be delegations to accompany the elected delegates. It is estimated that a crowd of 8,000 to 10,000 people will be attracted to Greensburg during the week, all of whom will be members of the order.

Robert E. Wright Canton of Greensburg, will be host to the oncoming lodgemen. Preparations are now being completed for the reception of the visitors. The matter of lodging is one of importance and that has been one of the foremost plans to be worked out. Greensburg's hotels will be taxed to accommodate the crowds during the week and many delegations have secured lodging in surrounding towns which are easily accessible to the convention city.

The new home of the Greensburg Lodge No. 840 will be the headquarters of the visitors and will be profusely decorated for the occasion. In honor of the big convention Greensburg will be a mass of decorations and many attractions have been arranged for the entertainment of the delegations.

Sent to Reform School

Tuesday morning, Deputy Sheriff Bennie Brown left for Huntingdon reformatory with Frank Sinko, Dick Welsh and Thomas McGee. The last two boys are from Monessen. These young men will spend a period in the reformatory until their habits are changed.

No Change in Admission

The greatest news yet for the Olympic theatre patrons is that we have decided instead of 10c and 15c admission for "Jewel," tomorrow, Thursday, as has been advertised, to keep it down to our regular prices, 5c and 10c to give the opportunity to our patrons to follow and see the greatest improvement which it made on Broadway Universal features. The latest reports are that "Jewel" on Thursday, Sept. 30, Hobart Bosworth in "A Little Brother of the Rich" Oct. 7; Nat Goodwin in "Business is Business," Oct. 17, Thursday; and Mary Fuller in "Under Southern Skies" Oct. 21, Thursday are wonderful pictures, indeed. So in order to get you to see them, we are reducing the prices for "Jewel" tomorrow. 1t fp

Still in the Race

John L. Armitage of New Kensington, who was defeated for the nomination as county commissioner on the Republican ticket, is still in the race. Armitage's name will appear on the ballot in the November election as a candidate on the Washington party ticket.

Berkey Boyd, who won the Republican nomination as county commissioner, will also be on the Washington party ticket at the November election.

The Washington party has also endorsed John E. Shields for sheriff and he will be both the Republican and Washington party candidate at the general election.

Attempts Suicide

Alice Boyle, aged 25, of Brownsville, who says she is an actress, on Monday night tried to jump from the railing of the Sixth street bridge. Two men pulled her back and gave her into the custody of Policeman P. J. Walsh. Magistrate John A. Fugassi in the Central police court turned the girl over to Miss Anna C. Langan, a social worker. Domestic troubles wer responsible for her actions she told the magistrate.

M. E. Conference

The Pittsburgh conference of the Methodist Episcopal church will convene in its annual session in Christ church, Pittsburgh, next week, the first sessions to begin October 6, and to continue throughout the week, and part of the following appointments may be handed down by the bishop on the following Monday, but this is more likely to occur Tuesday.

Possibly more interest is centered in the coming conference over previous years, because of the election of six laymen as delegates to the General conference which convenes at Saratoga, N. Y., May 1, 1916.

Each church in the Pittsburgh district has selected by popular vote one layman, who will be privileged to vote on the selection of the six men to go to the General conference.

There are spirited contests in the Pittsburgh, Allegheny and Washington districts, where there are more than one candidate, but in the Blairsville and McKeesport districts there is no opposition to J. Frederick Jones of McKeesport district and L. B. Weller of the Blairsville district. There are two candidates from the Washington district, three from the Allegheny district and two from the Pittsburgh district. It has been the custom of the lay delegates to see that each district has a representative and it is not thought that there will be any deviation from this rule.

This election will be held in a meeting place other than where the conference is held, but in close proximity.

Good Show Tonight

Manager McShaffrey offers the patrons of the Star theatre one of Jesse Lasky's most famous productions this evening entitled "A Gentleman of Leisure." The picture tells the convulsingly funny story of a rich society young man who in an unguarded moment, makes a wager that he can commit a burglary and escape detention. It can readily be imagined that this proves the basis of a most extraordinary farce.

Ready for Races

Washington, Pa., Sept. 29— The classiest field of drivers ever gathered together on a half mile track, is assurred for the automobile and motorcycle races to be held on the Arden track Saturday afternoon. Five additional entries for the free-for-all and other events were received yesterday. C. B. McAllister chairman of the Washington Race association announced that two Kline machines would be entered from Pittsburgh. George Shaffer of Wheeling, W. Va., called the promoters by telephone and notified them that his filled entry blank was on its way here. John Fife, of Belle Vernon, also sent in an entry blank for his Maxwell racer. Shaffer will pilot a powerful Stutz. The fifth entry received was from Charles Kletz of Bellaire, O., who has a 55-horse power Fiat that has been the sensation of the year throughout West Virginia and Ohio. Bob Allison of Waynesburg, arrived here today and went to the track to try out his Thomas car. He was well satisfied with the manner in which his machine performed, but would not state the speed he attained. Other drivers are expected to arrive today. The track will be at the entire disposal of the entrants in the motorcycle and automobile events today and tomorrow, but they will not have much opportunity to work Friday, as the car load of calcium chloride that is to be placed on the course has arrived. The entire oval will be covered and then gone over with a heavy steam roller. The calcium chloride will not only improve the surface and make it possible for a greater speed to be secured, but will also, prevent a heavy dust from being raised. Seats were placed on sale in Washington yesterday and there was a heavy demand for them. It is predicted that the races will attract a monster crowd, conservative estimates running from 15,000 to 20,000.

Pension Fund

The state having made final provision for the payment of mothers' pensions, now four months in arrears, orders were being made Tuesday morning for the payment by the county controller. The total amount of money due the mothers, now on the list, is $895.50. The payments range for the month of June, July, August and September from $4 to $33, the lesser amount being only for one month, that of September. There were seven persons added to the list during the month of September, making 57 on the payroll. It may be some time before the checks reach the women on the roll, as the money must first be paid over by the state.

Making One's Own Model

That's a beautiful little story from Evanstown, Ill., about the Howard Osborns, bridal pair of Northwestern university, showing how Miss Lamke made Osborne a model husband before she married him.

Three days after they first met, Mr. Lamke presented Osborn with a set of rules like this: Rise at 6 a. m.; cold bath and exercise; breakfast on toast and coffee; loyalty to study, no attention to girl students, no smoking, drinking, loafing or overeating, eight hours sleep daily; daily athletic practice. Young Howard observed these rules for four years, married the girl and is now a "model husband."

It is a beautiful story, as is also that one about "Jack and the Beanstock." Only 'tis to be feared that this beauty, like most others, is just skin deep.

A man who will let a woman lay down his rules of conduct before marriage and faithfully live up to them after he has got her, is something more than a model husband, he's a model angel, and as rare as the dodo. Of course, most men are angels about the time of their marriage, but any wife will testify that they speedily outgrow it, very largely. There are a large number of cases indicating that the fellow who lets his sweetheart run his eating, drinking, sleeping, and so forth, runs such things himself, with much fierceness, after their marriage. Mrs. Osborn's rules are fine—save as to that naked toast breakfast—but possession does make such a difference, the variance between anticipation and acquisition is usually so pronounced that time alone can demonstrate that she has actually landed a real model.

A Medal for Sense

Somebody ought to pass a hero medal to Oscar Brindley, instructor at the San Diego camp. He was lolled to make a flight with Miss Tiny Broadwick, who was to drop from a parachute into the exposition grounds.

The advertising was big. The risk was big. Consequently the crowd was big. Brindley went up a little ways, found a gale raging, descended, and, in spite of all the urging that could be brought to bear on him, refused to again ascend. The usual proceeding would have been to re-ascend and break his and the girl's necks, less the crowd be disappointed. Brindley, heroically refused to take the risk. Any fool can break his neck trying to please a big crowd, and many a one does it. It takes courage to make a stand for sense and safety before a big crowd.

Doesn't Scare Him

Colonel Roosevelt would have the sons of the rich compelled to serve a year in a great industrial army, even as "dirty handed laborers," and says he doesn't care a cuss if the proposition does smack of Socialism.

Although not a new one, the colonel's idea is one of the very biggest. Make the rich go through the experiences of the poor, and there will be some mighty large changes in thought, along the lines of Socialism. However, the colonel's latest announcement is notable as putting Socialism on the list of things that he isn't afraid of.

DOUBLY PROVEN

Monessen Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence

This Monessen citizen testified long ago.

Told of quick relief—of undoubted benefit.

The facts are now confirmed.

Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive.

It forms convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. B. Wadsworth, 270 Donner avenus, Monessen says: "I was in poor health for some time and didn't know what was the trouble. I had severe backaches and was bothered by chills. Spots often floated before my eyes. I finally procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at the Hirsch Drug Co., and began taking them. I improved from the first and was soon cured" (Statement given Oct. 2, 1907.)

A SECOND STATEMENT

On January 16, 1914, Mrs. Wadsworth said: "I use Doan's Kidney Pills once in a while and a few doses always relieves me."

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D. LL. D., Commissioner of Health

MIDNIGHT OIL

Our barnyards have not yet had electric lights installed, so the domestic animals still go to bed at dark.

In these days when every village boasts its electric light plant and the streets of even our smaller municipalities are ablaze with light, night is for all practical purposes as light as day, and the primitive instinct to seek shelter and repose with the falling darkness has been lost to civilized mankind.

The modern tendency seems to be to shorten the hours of work and extend the hours of play into those that in the cosmic scheme of things were intended by nature for rest. While there is little truth in the old saying that "an hour's rest before midnight is worth two thereafter," the danger is that extending pleasure and entertainment to late hours of the night breeds an irregularity of habit which is not conducive to good health. Late frolics after a days' work are apt to lead to unusual exhaustion for which the ordinary allotment of sleep will not compensate.

Fortunately the majority of us in this world have a considerable amount of work to do each day. If we keep late hours at night, the tendency is to expend our energy on pleasure instead of the real business of life.

Daylight is the best time for physical work or brain work. The early morning hours beat the midnight oil game for the student and scholar. The great majority of authors do their work in the morning.

Poor Richard says that "he who riseth late must trot all day." The midnight hours, no matter how brilliantly illuminated, are a poor exchange for those of the early morning.

Concealing a Gem

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

When I was a youngster casting about for something to do for a living I spent a good deal of time groping in the dark. I was of an adventurous disposition and longed for new fields. Finally I settled on a career.

I went out to India to seek my fortune and found—well, for three years I found poverty, then I found something better. Walking on a street in Calcutta, I saw at my feet a brilliant spot emitting the colors of the spectrum. I stooped and picked up, to my surprise, a diamond. It was not one of enormous proportions, nor yet was it small. It was worth not less than $10,000 nor more than $20,000, but as I was no judge of diamonds, I did not know. It was surely of sufficient value to take me home to America and give me a new start.

Nevertheless, I was sufficiently honest to look in such mediums as would serve to advertise its loss. I did not advertise it myself because there is so much rascality in that benighted country that had I done so I would have been beset by persons whose object would have been to get possession of it surreptitiously. I did not see any advertisement of a lost diamond, so I considered myself its owner. My theory of its loss was this. There had been a gathering of Indian potentates in Calcutta, and some one of them had dropped it. These fellows have so many jewels that the loser may not have missed it, or perhaps if he did miss it he may have considered it beneath his dignity to issue any public notice of the fact.

One incident in its finding troubled me. Upon picking it up, while I was examining it I looked up suddenly to learn if any one saw me and encountered the gaze of an Indian. There was a diabolical expression on his face that told me if he had a chance he would murder me to relieve me of my find. I put the gem in my vest pocket and walked away, not looking at the man to see what became of him.

I had a room in a low grade hostelry—I could afford nothing better—and that night in order to make sure of my gem I tied it to the palm of my hand and slept with it in my grip. During the night I heard some one rummaging in my room. I lay perfectly still, and by and by whoever was there went out. I had not told any one of my find and could not understand who could have had a motive for robbing one whose very appearance indicated poverty.

I had a friend in Calcutta who was in good circumstances. I went to him, told him of my find and that I wished to go home. He loaned me the money to pay my fare, and I sailed for San Francisco. I had not been out twelve hours before I recognized in one of the passengers the man who had seen me pick up the diamond.

It is a very uncomfortable feeling to know that you are cooped up with one who is determined to relieve you of a valuable article. It seemed to me that, whatever I did to conceal my diamond, this Indian would get it from me. I was sure that he had come on board for it, and the natives of India are so stealthy, have so many insidious ways of securing their ends, that I considered my property as good as lost.

On the forward lower deck was a coop containing chickens. They were of a rare variety and were going to some American chicken fancier. One morning, standing before the coop, a singular plan of concealing my diamond occurred to me. It was to let one of the chickens swallow it. He would hold it in his crop, and I could shadow him as the Indian was shadowing me and in time get it away from him. From my next meal I took away with me some crusts of bread and, going to the chicken coop as soon as I was sure I was unobserved, began feeding a stately rooster. He took down one piece of crust after another, and among them I fed him my diamond. It was rather large for him, but he got it down, and I congratulated myself that if it was lost to me that rascally Indian would not get it.

I visited the bird, that was now worth a small fortune, the same evening and went again to the coop the next morning. He was there in the evening, but at my morning visit I was horrified to see that he was missing from the coop. I knew that the Indian had got him, but did not trouble myself to discover how. Not a word did I say to any one on the subject. I met the Indian later walking the deck and fancied that there was a look of triumph in his eye. As for me, I endeavored to conceal any evidence of knowing that he had secured possession of my property. If he was obliged to kill the rooster for the diamond I was resolved to kill him before I would permit him to leave the ship with my property.

Where did he keep the bird? I was not long in finding out. My stateroom was in the stern of the ship directly over the steerage. In the middle of the night I heard a crow. Jumping from my berth, I threw on some clothes, ran below and hunted for the crower. I found him in possession of the Indian. I drew a long knife, with which I made a pass at the man, seized the rooster and ran with him to my room and locked the door.

I never left the room, nor did the bird till after reaching port. I killed him in my stateroom and was delighted to find the diamond in his crop. I got it safely ashore and sold it to a jeweler for $18,000.

ODD BITS OF NEWS

Milburn, O.—J. D. Hart exhibited at the county fair a pair of stockings over 100 years old. They were made by his grandmother who picked the cotton, wove it into thread and then knit the stockings. During the storm in Galveston in 1900 they were rescued with difficulty and by the merest accident were saved.

Beloit, Wis. Clarence Montroy is earning money to pay his way through school by allowing automobiles to run over his body at a mile a minute clip. Then he takes up a collection in the crowd. He also bends horseshoes in his teeth as a side issue. He was left an orphan when his father murdered his mother, sister and brother and committed suicide.

Williston, N. D.—When Kenneth Jordan, an 8-year-old prisoner in the county jail, secured the keys from the sheriff and opened the doors telling the prisoners they could escape, only one of the twelve took advantage of the offer. The one who escaped was re-arrested.

Chester, Pa.—When William Downs was entrapped by blue dye in a vat which he was mending, he was overcome by fumes and taken out for dead. After the undertakers had prepared the body for burial and removed it to Downs' home, the corpse arose on his bed and screamed. "I'm not dead and don't you think I am."

Shelbyville, Ind.—The Lon Mull farms near Manilla have the record apple. It is sixteen inches in circumference and weighs 26 ounces.

Philadelphia, Pa.—It takes fifty cents to commit suicide by the gas route in Philadelphia. When Viola grew tired of life, put a pipe on the gas jet, the other end in her mouth and lay down to die, the quarter in the meter ran out and her life was saved.

London, Eng.—English women who have always looked on the use of rouge as bad taste, are beginning to use it in large quantities. The makers of cosmetics say that worry from the war is making the women pale and they are resorting to paints and powders in desperation.

West Penn Will Spend $1,000,000

Connellsville, Pa., Sept. 27—The West Penn Traction company will spend $1,000,000 in the installation of a complete power unit of a capacity of 19,000 kilowats at their plant here. The contract has already been let and sub-contractors have begun excavating. Occupancy by March is the goal and this will necessitate a rush job.

That this will be followed by other improvements of a similar nature was the intimation. The present addition to the power plant will bring the total investment of the company there to $3,500,000.

THOUGHT SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Unionville, Mo.—"I suffered from a female trouble and I got so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without holding on to something. I had nervous spells and my fingers would cramp and my face would draw, and I could not speak, nor sleep to do any good, had no appetite, and everyone thought I would not live. Some one advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had taken so much medicine and my doctor said he could do me no good so I told my husband he might get me a bottle and I would try it. By the time I had taken it I felt better. I continued its use, and now I am well and strong.

"I have always recommended your medicine ever since I was so wonderfully benefitted by it and I hope this letter will be the means of saving some other poor woman from suffering."—Mrs. MARTHA SEAVEY, Box 1144, Unionville, Missouri.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

IMPOSSIBLE

Although we have been trying to say the least possible about our picture to avoid the confusion and tiring our patrons every day with advertising pictures, yet we found it impossible. No, we cannot keep still. If the government of the United States would try to stop us, it would have a hard time to do so, we would have to shoot out once anyway. It reminds us of a story of an ancient king who unfortunately happened to have donkey's ears and which were kept carefully hidden behind his long hair, but when his private and trusted barber died, he had to, of course, have another barber. But the new barber was so shocked on his discovery that he could not keep his mouth shut even while he was shaving the king, so the king told him to shut his mouth and tell nothing to anyone about his donkey ears, otherwise he would be hanged. But oh my, it was too great a thing to be kept secret. The barber could not do it, and owing to the fear that he positively would be hanged if the secret spread out and because he could not keep it himself, he dug a hole in the earth and put his mouth on the hole and quietly whispered "The king has donkey ears." Oh, but what a great relief it was.

The story means how can we keep our mouth tight when we have such pictures as "Hypocrites" in which you see how the congregation which was so shocked when they found their minister dead with a newspaper in his hands reading of course in despair his delivered sermon "Hypocrisy" to his congregation in vain, and to his ruination. When you have the famous actor, J. Warren Kerrigan, after four months' illness, L KO, a great comedy. "The Romance of Elaine" all such star players in the same day, how can you help it but yell to all your patrons, so they won't miss such opportunities.

Tomorrow's picture "Jewell"—When we believe and know that it is the best picture that ever appeared on any screen.

About Friday—When we have King Baggot, the Universal favorite with 14 more stars in a four reel feature and on the same day one of the Metro great features in five parts, "The Fighting Bob," and Saturday the Animated Weekly, the picture that revolutionizes the whole United States, etc., we have to advertise every day, every hour, every minute and in every corner for your sake. We have the goods, we have the place. Keep it in your mind always. 1t
